NO HOPE FOR BRYANISM.

It seems almost certain that if Mr. Bryan lives until 1900 he will be the Presidential candidate of all the odds and ends of the parties that are opposed to the policy of the Republican party. It is equally as evident that his candidacy will be followed with complete defeat, if he makes the race on the same issues that he did in 1896. Time and results have demonstrated that the experiments Mr. Bryan suggested and the theories of government he advocated were unwise and impractical. His free trade theories on the tariff question have been proven at fault by the splendid trade results that have followed a return to a protective tariff. All the distress that existed with the industrial interests of the country prior to the election of Mr. McKinley has not only been removed but our domestic and foreign trade has assumed proportions that in figures are record breakers. Not only is more business being done at home but all the markets of the civilized world are now being reached with our products. These conditions are the very reverse of what was predicted by Mr. Bryan and his followers. They claimed that the restoration of a high protective tariff would destroy our foreign trade. See what false prophets they have been.

It was claimed by the Bryanites that the adoption of the gold standard would not only prevent the return of prosperity to the country but would increase the financial distress that already prevailed. They said that there was but one positive cure for our financial ills, and that was opening the Government mints to the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. They also asserted that the triumph of sound money in 1896 would further contract and congest the currency of the country. In these predictions Mr. Bryan and his followers were as wide of the mark as they were on the tariff. Since McKinley's election there has been a steady and continuous improvement in our financial condition. The volume of circulating medium has been swelled instead of diminished, rates of interest have been lowered instead of advanced, and there has been no trouble in getting money, by those persons who have anything to offer in exchange or as security.

Instead of depression in the agricultural interests of the land, as was prophesied by the Bryanites, the farming industry has never been more active and hopeful. In the Western States, where the farmers were in black despair during Cleveland's term of office, there has never been such prosperous conditions as now exist. Here again Mr. Bryan has proven a false prophet.

It will also be remembered that in 1896 hundreds of thousands of workmen were idle, and those who were employed were receiving reduced wages and were holding their employment by uncertain tenure. Mr. Bryan frantically declared that the horrible condition in which the workmen were found had come from the discontinuance of the free coinage of silver and the adoption of the gold standard. The falsity of that contention has been shown by the condition in which the workmen of the country are now found. Throughout the length and breadth of the United States there is not an industrious, capable man who cannot now find work, if he looks for it. In fact laborers are now hunted for much more eagerly than work was sought by them prior to McKinley's election. Not only is the labor of the country now steadily employed, but every day we see announcements of increase in the wages of employes of factories, work shops, mines and all kinds of industrial enterprises.

Without there is a great change in existing conditions Mr. Bryan in 1900 will have to appeal to the masses for support on some other grounds than he did in 1896. There is not likely to be any marked change in the conditions, therefore we conclude there is no hope for Bryanism.

It is reported that President McKinley will call Congress to meet in extra session early in the coming Fall. The questions growing out of the war with Spain, the Nicaragua canal, and merchant marine are considered of such importance that work should commence on them earlier than December. President McKinley is likely to act with caution and judgment, and the country will approve of whatever he does.

The Southern Democratic politicians are constantly abusing the policy of the Republican party, when they must know that the future welfare of the South depends upon the continuance of the industrial policy of the Republicans, to say nothing of the financial policy which has made our currency good the world over.

At a recent Democratic primary election in Caroline county, Virginia, it is said that whiskey was used too freely by some of the candidates and that gross frauds were practiced. The Democratic manipulators in that part of Virginia have become so hardened by defrauding Republicans that they do not hesitate to cheat each other when the opportunity is offered.

The Republican party is standing solidly by McKinley. He has been painstaking, but resolute upon every question that has been presented to his Administration, and has in every instance where an important question was presented acted wisely. Mr. McKinley is to-day much more popular with the people than he was when elected President.

Bristol, Virginia, has not only made a reputation on new election methods but has introduced to the world a new kind of peacemaker. It's champion peacemaker is one who shot an old man, nearly three score years and ten, because he was defending himself from what he thought a dangerous attack of another man. Who will say blessed is such a peacemaker?

Miss Julia Dent Grant, daughter of General Fred Grant is engaged to be married to Prince Michael Cantacuzene. Miss Grant should remember the experience of her aunt Nellie, who married Sartoris, and profit thereby. She had better wed some honest American who is proud of being a citizen of this great country.

The Richmond Times thinks a strong minority political party would be of great benefit to the South. How can or could such a party be useful as long as violence and fraud are the chief methods of the party in control of the election machinery of the several States of the South?

The money in circulation among the people of the United States has reached about two billions of dollars, which is approximately $25.50 per capita. This is an expansion on which the anti-expansionists are silent.

What Virginia most needs is an honest election law. How can the State ever hold a proud position again as long as its elective officers secure their positions by fraud and corruption?

The new Democracy consists of all the dissatisfied elements, allocating every conceivable sin, under the leadership of Mr. Bryan, with the Chicago platform as the shibboleth of their faith.

The free traders said the Dingley bill would ruin the trade interests of the country. Everybody would like to see a little more ruin such as the bill has brought.

The report comes from Utah that the Mormons are practicing polygamy with comparative openness and defying the Edmunds law.

Mr. Bryan has been rather silent for the past two weeks. We wonder if he has at last realized that a man can talk too much?

Extreme partisan politics has greatly retarded the progress of the South.

The Situation and the Duty.
Atlanta "Constitution" (Dem.)
We find ourselves in possession of a strange people, to conquer whom we made no pretension. How shall we get out of this responsibility? By turning them over to anarchy among themselves? By delivering them over to nations with institutions hostile to our own? Or, by fitting them to take their place in the family of nations as students of our own theory of government? That the latter plan is the one which Providence has imposed upon us there can be no doubt. We can spread the Gospel of the rule of the people, setting those upon their feet whose fate is thrown into our hands, maintaining our own national integrity and at the same time building up that new alliance of republics which is to displace the imperialism of past centuries.

Prices go Up.

(Richmond Times.)

There is complaint from certain sources that the price of steel has advanced since the steel trust was formed, and this fact is used as an argument against trusts in general. But there are some other things to be considered. While the price of steel has advanced, the price of pig iron has also advanced, the price of iron properties in Virginia have advanced, and, better than all, the price of labor in the iron industries has advanced. Beginning with May 1st, the Sloss Iron and Steel Company, of Alabama, and the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, of Alabama, and several other iron companies in Pennsylvania and the West have advanced wages from 10 to 15 per cent., and Birmingham is having a general industrial boom, with every iron-worker in the community profitably employed.

The advance in the price of iron has also caused a little boom in Southwest Virginia. The iron furnaces in that section of the State have been bought up by a corporation and will soon be in blast. There has been renewed activity in mineral lands in that section of the State, and when all these iron industries get to work the laborers and the people generally throughout that section will feel the good effects. The advance in the price of iron, to whatever source it may be attributed, is not by any means a calamity to the people of this country.

A Remarkable Phenomenon.

(Richmond Dispatch.)

A well-known business-man of this city, with scientific turn of mind, was the victim yesterday of a joke which created great merriment among a party of his friends, and into the spirit of which he entered heartily.

It was all about sulphur and rain, and the convenient desk phone contributed to the successful working of the scheme by which the joke was perpetrated. After the rain on Wednesday evening this gentleman detected on the street what resembled an accumulation of sulphur. This led him to investigate, and yesterday morning he detected other apparent evidences to suggest the theory that sulphur had come down in the shower of the day before. Friends were consulted, but no light could be thrown on the subject.

Finally the seeker after scientific information entered an office where there were a number of friends and told of his observations. Several suggestions were made as to how the problem might be solved. "Ask the Weather Bureau," said some one, and this suggestion was adopted. He did ask the Weather Bureau, but the answers came from a friend who stepped to a desk phone in an adjoining room.

"Hello! Is that the Weather Bureau?" the phone conversation began.
"Yes, what is it?"
"I have come across what seems to be a remarkable phenomenon, and found sulphur on the ground after yesterday's rain. Is this a very frequent occurrence?"
"Yes, in a—"

There was a roar of laughter, and the party of friends, after enjoying the joke, dispersed.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Professor H. B. Hutchins, dean of the Ann Arbor Law School, has been chosen president of the Iowa State University.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Louis Dyer, of Oxford, England, formerly an assistant professor of Greek at Harvard, is delivering a course of lectures on Machiavelli at the Royal Institution, London.

Anthony N. Brady, the Wall Street financier, who is one of ex-Governor Flower's most trusted associates, began life as the keeper of a small hotel in Albany, N. Y.

Alexander Beaubien, the first white child born in Chicago and a son of General John Baptiste Beaubien, has just celebrated his golden wedding at his home in that city.

Mark Twain is greatly distressed by the death of a favorite cat, which he has owned for many years, and which always lay on his writing table while the author was at work.

A memorial tablet in honor of Colonel H. C. Egbert will be placed in the wall of the Fort Thomas water tower, within a stone's throw of the Colonel's former house, near Cincinnati. The local Chamber of Commerce has the matter in hand.

Thomas Edison's absent-mindedness about every day affairs is proverbial. He goes over to New York at least three times every week and yet last week forgot to purchase a ticket each time. When he does manage to remember this little necessity for travelers the ticket is generally covered with minute and intricate calculations by the time the conductor comes to collect it.

Gold Deposits in the Philippines. O At this distance and with the slight exploratory work which has been carried on in the Philippine Islands, the minerals that can be profitably exported are best known. Mr. George F. Becker in his recent investigation has given a very clear view of the present mineral exploration in the Philippines, and has shown that gold is found in a great number of localities in the archipelago, from northern Luzon to central Mindanao. In most cases the gold is detrital, and is found either in existing water-courses or in deposits now deserted by the current. It is said that in Mindanao some of the gravels are in an elevated position and adapted to hydraulic mining. There are no data at hand which indicate decisively the value of any of the placers, but the fact that they are washed largely with coconuts shells for pans by the natives is an indication of either rich deposits or quite coarse gold. In the province of Abra, in the northern end of Luzon, there are placers, and the river Abra itself yields auriferous gravel. In La Planto there are gold-quartz veins as well as gravels, and here also is the best-developed deposit of copper ores, although these are also reported from a great number of localities on the islands of Luzon, Mindoro, Capul, Masbate, Pansy, and Mindanao. This last island is practically unexplored and full of possibilities.—Dr. Davis T. Day, in the Engineering Magazine for May.

CURRENT TOPICS.

It is probable that few people know that an enormous quantity of old iron in the shape of anchors, chains, etc., is annually rescued from the sea. During ten months as much as 120 tons weight was dredged up on the east coast of England alone.

This is the advice which The New York Press gives to a young man who wanted to know how to increase his height by three inches: "In the first place, eat beans. They have an upward inclination, and we observe that the giants of Maine, who live almost wholly on them, don't care a rap whether their parents are long or short. People who live on turnips, the broad, flat variety, generally partake of the nature of that watery root—they become round and dropical. If the beans do not aid your stature try a cannon ball to each ankle, and when you sleep hold to the headboard with your hands and let the weights swing over the foot. Lie down a great deal. Sleep on the small of your back on a horizontal bar."

Nearly all the claims arising from the destruction of the Maine have been paid by the Treasury Department. An act of Congress provided that such claims should be divided into two classes, the gratuity and the indemnity, the former being those of the families or relatives of the men killed by the explosion. This act also provided that a year's pay in these cases be granted in lieu of indemnity. So far the total number of cases settled is 204, aggregating in payment $87,706. Of the indemnity claims paid there have been ninety-two, amounting to $35,636.

The stevedores of Havana have struck for higher pay, and the business of loading and unloading ships was almost at a standstill until 400 Chinese were employed to take the places of the men who had refused to work. The Cubans endeavored to prevent the Chinese from working, but were driven away by the American soldiers.

George Huff, of Portland, Indiana, claims to have discovered a new gas which is suitable for use as fuel or for illuminating purposes, and which costs very little to manufacture. He says that water and air are the only ingredients used, and that the results are obtained by compressing the air and forcing it through water.

The American soldiers are not allowed to shoot chickens belonging to Filipinos, and they can't catch them because as a Kansas boy explains, "they fly till their legs are rested and then run till their wings are rested."
